Atreyee Gupta was born with a rare genetic disorder that left her unable to walk. But she didn't let that stop her from achieving her dreams. She went on to earn a degree in electrical engineering and became a successful engineer at Google.

Atreyee's story is one of hope, resilience, and triumph. It is a must-read for anyone who has ever faced challenges in their life.

Early Life

Atreyee was born in Kolkata, India, in 1989. She was diagnosed with spinal muscular atrophy (SMA) when she was just a toddler. SMA is a rare genetic disorder that affects the muscles. It causes weakness and atrophy of the muscles, and it can lead to difficulty walking, breathing, and swallowing.

Atreyee's parents were devastated by her diagnosis. They were told that she would never be able to walk or live a normal life. But Atreyee's parents refused to give up on her. They enrolled her in physical therapy and speech therapy, and they did everything they could to help her reach her full potential.

Education

Atreyee attended a mainstream school, where she excelled in her studies. She was a bright and curious student, and she loved learning. In high school, she took advanced placement classes in math and science. She also participated in extracurricular activities, such as debate and robotics.

After graduating from high school, Atreyee attended the Indian Institute of Technology Kharagpur, where she studied electrical engineering. She was the only student with a disability in her class, but she didn't let that stop her. She earned her degree with honors, and she was recruited by Google.

Career

Atreyee joined Google in 2011. She works as a software engineer on the Google Search team. She is responsible for developing new features for Google Search, and she has made significant contributions to the product.

Atreyee is a role model for people with disabilities. She shows that anything is possible, if you set your mind to it. She is an inspiration to everyone who has ever faced challenges in their life.

Awards and Recognition

Atreyee has received numerous awards and recognition for her work. In 2014, she was named one of the "30 Under 30" by Forbes magazine. She was also awarded the "Rising Star Award" by the National Organization of Disability.

Atreyee's story is a testament to the power of the human spirit. She is a role model for people with disabilities, and she is an inspiration to everyone who has ever faced challenges in their life.
