Getting Started

- Getting a visa
- Booking flights
- Packing for Vietnam

Getting a visa

Citizens of most countries need a visa to enter Vietnam. You can apply for a visa online, at a Vietnamese embassy or consulate, or through a travel agent.

The most common type of visa is the single-entry tourist visa, which is valid for 30 days. You can also apply for a multiple-entry tourist visa, which is valid for 90 days.

To apply for a visa online, you will need to submit a completed application form, a passport-sized photo, and a copy of your passport. You will also need to pay a visa fee.

If you are applying for a visa at a Vietnamese embassy or consulate, you will need to submit the same documents as you would for an online application. You will also need to make an appointment to visit the embassy or consulate.

If you are applying for a visa through a travel agent, they will handle the entire process for you. However, you will likely need to pay a higher fee for their services.

Booking flights

There are several international airports in Vietnam, including Hanoi, Ho Chi Minh City, Da Nang, and Nha Trang. You can fly directly to Vietnam from many major cities around the world.

When booking flights to Vietnam, it is important to keep in mind that the country is long and narrow. This means that it can take several hours to fly from one end of the country to the other.

If you are planning on traveling to multiple cities in Vietnam, it is a good idea to book flights that will allow you to connect in one of the major airports. This will save you time and money.

There are several budget airlines that fly to Vietnam, including AirAsia, VietJet Air, and Jetstar Asia. These airlines offer low fares, but they may have additional fees for checked baggage, seat assignments, and other services.

Packing for Vietnam

Vietnam is a tropical country, so it is important to pack light, breathable clothing. You will also need to pack a raincoat or umbrella, as it rains frequently in Vietnam.

If you are planning on visiting any temples or pagodas, you will need to dress modestly. This means covering your shoulders and knees.

In addition to clothing, you will also need to pack toiletries, sunscreen, insect repellent, and a first-aid kit.

Here is a suggested packing list for a trip to Vietnam:

- Light, breathable clothing
- Raincoat or umbrella
- Modest clothing for visiting temples and pagodas
- Toiletries
- Sunscreen
- Insect repellent

- First-aid kit

Planning Your Itinerary

- Choosing a route
- Deciding how long to stay
- Booking accommodation

Choosing a route

Vietnam is a long and narrow country, so it is important to choose a route that will allow you to see the places you are most interested in.

If you are short on time, you may want to focus on one region of Vietnam, such as the north, central, or south. If you have more time, you can plan a more comprehensive itinerary that will allow you to see more of the country.

Here are a few suggested routes for a trip to Vietnam:

- North Vietnam: Hanoi, Halong Bay, Sapa, Ninh Binh, Hue
- Central Vietnam: Da Nang, Hoi An, Hue, Nha Trang, Da Lat
- South Vietnam: Ho Chi Minh City, Mekong Delta, Phu Quoc Island, Da Lat

Deciding how long to stay

How long you stay in Vietnam will depend on your budget, interests, and travel style. If you are short on time, you can see the highlights of the country in a week or two. However, if you want to really experience Vietnam, you should plan on staying for at least two weeks.

Here is a suggested itinerary for a two-week trip to Vietnam:

- Day 1-3: Arrive in Hanoi and explore the city.
- Day 4-6: Take a day trip to Halong Bay.
- Day 7-9: Take a train to Sapa and trek to the summit of Fansipan Mountain.
- Day 10-12: Visit the ancient city of Hue.
- Day 13-14: Fly to Ho Chi Minh City and explore the city.
