Cultural Norms and Social Customs

- Greetings: Turks place great importance on greetings. When meeting someone for the first time, it is customary to shake hands with a firm grip and maintain eye contact. It is also common to exchange kisses on both cheeks with friends or close acquaintances.

- Respect for Elders: Turkish culture places a high value on respect for elders. It is important to show deference to those who are older or in positions of authority.
- Hospitality: Turks are renowned for their hospitality. It is considered polite to offer tea or coffee to guests and to make them feel welcome in your home.
- Modesty: Turks value modesty in dress and behavior. It is important to avoid revealing clothing or overly casual attire in professional settings.
- Religion: Turkey is a predominantly Muslim country, and religion plays an important role in society. It is important to be respectful of religious customs and traditions.

Business Etiquette and Communication Styles

- s: When introducing yourself in a business setting, it is customary to state your full name, title, and company affiliation. It is also polite to exchange business cards.
- Hierarchy and Status: Turkish business culture is hierarchical. It is important to be aware of the company's hierarchy and to address individuals appropriately.
- Communication: Turks communicate in a direct and expressive manner. It is important to be clear and concise in your communication, avoiding ambiguous language.
- Non-Verbal Communication: Non-verbal cues such as eye contact, body language, and gestures play a significant role in Turkish communication. It is important to be mindful of your body language and to maintain appropriate eye contact.

- Meetings: Meetings in Turkey are typically formal and structured. It is important to arrive on time and to dress professionally. It is also customary to exchange pleasantries before getting down to business.

Negotiation Strategies

- Relationship Building: Turks place great importance on building relationships. It is essential to establish a rapport with your negotiating counterparts before discussing business.
- Indirect Communication: Turks often use indirect language in negotiations. It is important to be patient and to listen carefully to understand the underlying meaning of what is being said.
- Flexibility: Turks value flexibility and are willing to negotiate. It is important to be prepared to compromise and to find mutually acceptable solutions.
- Bargaining: Bargaining is common in Turkish business culture. It is important to be prepared to negotiate on price and other terms, but to do so in a respectful manner.
- Decision Making: Decisions in Turkish businesses are often made by consensus. It is important to be patient and to allow for time to reach an agreement.
